Gruppe Fülöpp Art. (forming)

[6 batteries, 22 guns]

[Exact designation of battalions and type of guns is unknown; These were forming at start of campaign and available by 1 Nov]

[Apparently the guns did not take part in the campaign and could have been stationed along the Danube]

Deutsche Fliegertruppe

[Renamed "Deutsche Luftstreitkräfte" in 1916]

[Strength is increased from 6 to 8 to incorporate the addition of Fokker E.I planes into the flights]

[FFA = Feldflieger-Abteilung; used the acronym "FFA" in 1915, as this is the point where many other unit types appeared along with standardized acronyms for them]

[E planes were removed in Feb 1916, when KEK units were formed of 6 planes(?), then into Jastas in late summer 1916]

FFA.57

FFA.66

FFA.69

[All planes below represent the same formations as above, just equipped with bombs as the FAAs were dual role at this point]

[If two flights of the same FAA are available, then that is fine, it simply an abstraction that represents that part of the FAA sent a flight for recon and another part as bombers]

 [Historically this division received mountain equipment ~9 NOV, which is represented by Grp Zhuber having mountain troops (since it arrives later)]
 [This division was given a pioneer company which a source has given to 9.LstEtBrig, but here it is moved to division level because it makes more sense]

 the time]

156e Division d'Infanterie

[Formerly the 2e Division d'Inf du CEO from Gallipoli campaign]

[This division was a veteran of the Gallipoli campaign; Losses were replaced with recruits so quality remains at its initial level, but bde HQs and arty (except RAM) are +1 quality to represent experience]

[All non-European colonial infantry battalions were removed and changed with European battalions before sending to Salonika]

[Sent from Salonika on 14 Oct, to Gjevgjeli; was the first Entente force to arrive in Serbia]

[Infantry strength is unknown, but like the British 10th Div, it had suffered from the Gallipoli campaign, so strength can assumed to be similarly reduced in the regular infantry regiments when they landed at Salonika (assumed 70%)]

[This was a "K1" New Army division]

[This division was a veteran of the Gallipoli campaign (Suvla Bay landings in AUG); Losses were replaced with NA recruits so quality remains at its initial NA level, but bde HQs and arty are +1 quality to represent experience]

[Infantry battalion strength was initially no more than 500 men, average, due to losses at Gallipoli, but was augmented by 'several drafts' of replacements when the division arrived in Salonika, likely bringing up to near full strength]

[Apparently the 10th Div Cavalry Sq was not present (kept at Salonika?)]
